

Abstract

A security system reader receives a signal 5 containing an authentication code, determines whether the authentication code is from a badge or a keyfob, determines whether the authentication code is authentic,
and, if the authentication code is authentic, permits access.

10